

SELECTION OF SCHOOL LIBRARY MATERIALS

The school library supports the educational program of the school. In addition, the school library should develop reading skill, literary taste, and discrimination in choice of materials and should provide instruction in the use of books and libraries. The school library should contribute to the development of social, intellectual, and moral values of the students.

The responsibility for the selection of library books and media is delegated to school librarians with the approval of the principals. If a professionally trained librarian is not employed by the school, the responsibility will rest with the library media technician, who will work with the principal, teachers, and district library personnel to select appropriate materials.

Objectives of the Library Collection

Specific objectives of a school library collection are as follows:

1. To provide resource materials, including digital, for teachers and teaching tools and materials to implement the curriculum.
2. To provide a balanced collection to include titles representative of all areas of the curriculum.
3. To provide students materials that will be most meaningful in their growth and development as individuals.
4. To provide materials that will meet the needs of differing age groups, levels of maturity, cultural backgrounds, and interests.
5. To provide materials to stimulate reading and growth in critical judgment and appreciation.
6. To provide materials and an atmosphere to help students become skillful and discriminating users of libraries and of printed and digital materials.
7. To provide materials that will help students develop a wide range of significant and helpful interests.
8. To provide materials that will promote an aesthetic experience and help develop an appreciation of the arts.
9. To provide materials that will help students make satisfactory personal adjustments and acquire desirable social attitudes.
10. To provide technology which will assist students in assessing, retrieving, and utilizing materials.

11. To provide a variety of materials to meet recreational and enrichment needs of students.
12. To provide materials that will encourage the habit of personal investigation.
13. To encourage lifelong education through the use of library resources.

In addition to these factors, the following will be considered when choosing digital materials:

SELECTION OF SCHOOL LIBRARY MATERIALS (continued)

4. Supporting material - Pertinent accompanying materials for students and a teacher's guide.
5. Training for effective use.

Books for recreational reading are an important part of a school library collection and will be selected to represent a well-rounded collection which is keyed to young people's need, interests, and level of maturity.

Gifts

All gifts will be subjected to the same critical examination and criteria used in evaluating other materials recommended for purchase. No book or publication whose primary purpose is dissemination of propaganda shall be added to the library collection. Advertising through library materials is not acceptable. Final selection and acceptance for use shall be at the discretion of the professionally trained personnel who will make a recommendation to the Board.

Controversial Material

Freedom of speech and free access to information are a cherished part of the democratic process and contribute to free discussion of controversial issues. Materials on controversial issues shall be presented by both sides of the issue and an attempt will be made to meet these additional criteria when selecting them:

1. Concepts are presented which are suitable to the ability and maturity of the students.
2. The sources, purposes, and points of view of the material are readily identifiable.
3. The material is free of stereotype role description and/or sexist bias.

While individual publications used in a study may be one-sided, the total material presented should provide a balanced view of the topic.

Special consideration should be given to the selection of materials on the following subjects:

1. Religion: Factual, unbiased material which represents all major religions of the world should be available.
2. Ideologies: Libraries should make available basic factual information on the level of its reading public on any ideology of philosophy which exerts a strong force, either favorably or unfavorably, in government, current events, politics, education, or any other phase of life.

3. Sexual Incidents: Materials presenting incidents on sex should be subjected to a test of literacy merit. While the sensational or over-dramatic should not be included, the fact of sexual incidents appearing should not automatically disqualify a book. Such episodes should be objective, accurate, simple in presentation, and in good taste, and the books should be of literary value.
4. Obscenity, vulgarity, and profanity: Books which contain profanity are not a desirable addition to the school collection; however, if the use of profanity in some mature fiction is necessary for the development of character or situation, opens a clearer vision of life, develops understanding of other people, or breaks down intolerance, then the librarian will exercise judgment as to whether the total merit and the literary quality of the book itself transcend the objectionable passage.
5. Science: Medical and scientific knowledge should be made available without any biased selection of facts.

It is the right and responsibility of teachers and librarians to select reading material which will comprise a carefully balanced, complete collection.

Student Responsibility for Lost or Damaged Materials

When a student returns a library item which is damaged beyond repair or if the item is not returned, the student and parents/guardians shall be billed for the full replacement cost of the book. The replacement cost is determined by using the current issue of Books in Print.

When an item receives minor damage and may be repaired, a partial charge may be made, e.g., a charge for the rebinding of the book.

Payments received for lost and damaged materials will be deposited in the "Library Book Replacement" account.

If a lost library item is found and returned in good condition, a full refund will be made following district accounting procedures.
