

2013/14 AP Studio art poster published by the College Board to show examples of the highest scored work

AP 2-D Studio Art is an college level art class designed for the talented and motivated art student. During this year of study, students will have the opportunity to investigate different mediums, and different styles of art. They will also be able to develop their own ideation, style, and technique.

Students will create an extensive art portfolio which will include a minimum of 24 pieces of artwork.

When complete, the portfolio will be sent to the College Board for scoring. This will allow students to see how they rank in a national pool of AP Art students.

The score given by the College Board will determine if the student will be assigned college credit.

Students enjoy a relaxed atmosphere in the studio where they work on art to include in their portfolios

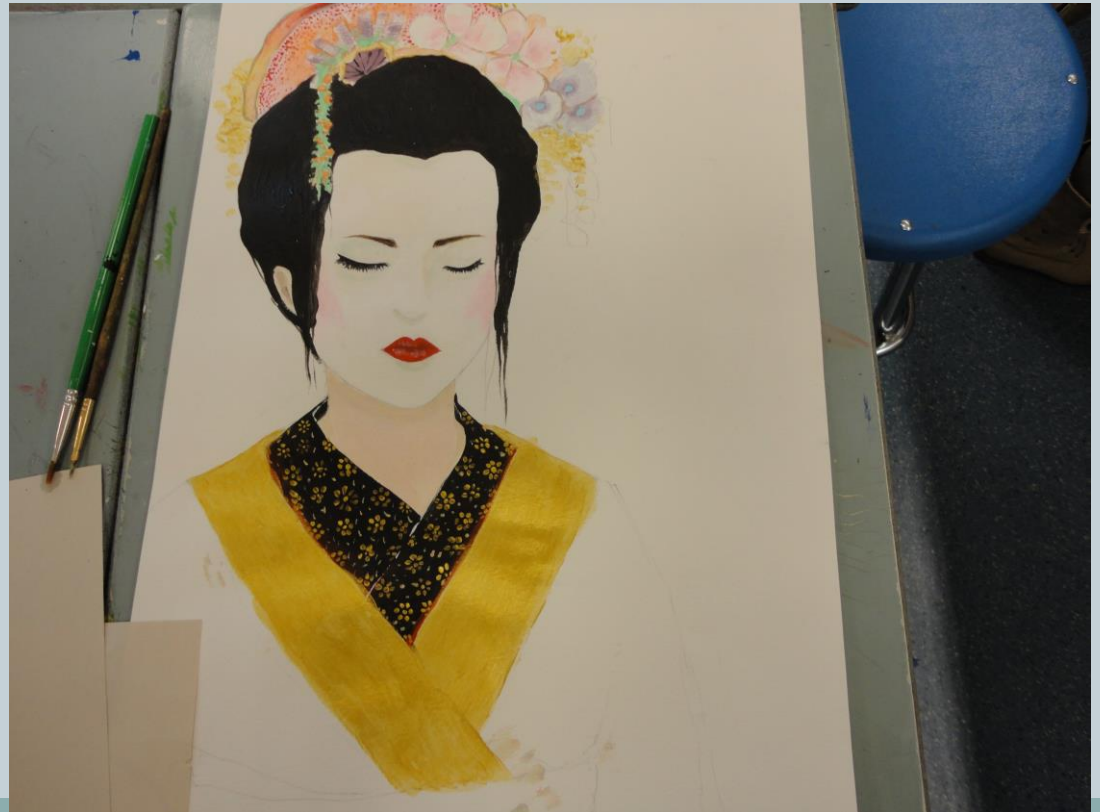

Portfolio Development

Students will develop 3 distinct parts of their portfolios:

1. Quality
2. Breadth
3. Concentration

- The Quality section of the portfolio consists of 5 pieces of work that are chosen from the Breadth and Concentration sections and physically sent to the AP Board for judging in portfolios provided by the College Board.

Paulina Dyadyukova

The Breadth section of the portfolios will consist of 12 pieces of artwork that show a variety of mediums, techniques, approaches to drawing and 2-D design. The students should clearly demonstrate their knowledge of the elements and principles of art in these works. Units of study will be assigned to insure that a wide range of skill and ideation is presented.

Francheska Navarro and April Mo do breadth work.

The Concentration section of the portfolio will consist of 12 high quality pieces of artwork that clearly demonstrate that the student has developed a body of work by investigation of a theme or idea. The concentration section must show growth and discovery.

Jeanna Kressin works on her concentration
